Uses of the Psalms

The Use of the Psalms in Ancient Israel

- The psalms were functional songs composed for use in worship by the ancient Israelites oThey served the crucial function of making connection between the worshiper and God
- Some were intended for us by individual worshipers (ex. Ps. 63) oMany were intended for corporate use (ex. Ps. 74; 147-150)
- Some were used when sacrifices were offered in the Temple
- Based on their titles, some were possibly sung by professional singers in corporate settings (ex. Ps. 80, 81)
 - OBut they were also sung in everyday settings by common people
- The psalms were collected into 5 books:
 - ∘Book 1: Ps. 1-41
 - OBook 2: Ps. 42-72
 - oBook 3: Ps. 73-89
 - oBook 4: 90-106
 - oBook 5: 107-150
- It is not possibly to date most of the psalms with certainty
 - OHowever, this is not all that problematic since the psalms generally are applicable to all times and settings

Psalm Titles

- The titles of the Psalms are not original
 - OAnd thus, are not considered inspired
- However, they give insight into who was associated with some of the psalms
 - oDavid (73 times)
 - oMoses (Ps. 90)
 - oSolomon (Ps. 72 & 117)
 - oThe 'sons' of Korah (11)
 - 'Sons' = school of musicians trained in certain styles
 - oAsaph (12)

The Psalms as a Collection

- The psalms were collected in the post-Babylonian exile period
- Ps. 1 & 2 act as an introduction to the collection as a whole oWhile Ps. 150 acts as a conclusion
- It acted as a sort of 'Temple hymnal'
- By the 1st century AD, the psalms were widely known by Jewish people OIncluding Jesus and His disciples
- Paul refers to their use by the early Church in Eph. 5:19 & Col. 3:16
